postnord Stamp News - September 2020

Consider what you write

The debate on social media sometimes gets out of hand and communication takes on a coarse tone. With its naive and humorous means of expression, the issue Consider what you write places the spotlight on the importance of communicating in a decent way - just stopping to think one more time before pressing "send".

Are you a subscriber?

Unfortunately, due to changes in conditions during the COVID-19 pandemic, we are slightly behind in our production schedule.

If you subscribe to strips, issue sets, first day covers, year packs or yearbooks, you won't receive your products until mid-October.

This year's stamps and minisheets in a reference volume

The complete collection

A total of 25 unique stamps mounted on black presentation cards – as a splendid visual reference. The cards contain information about the issues in Danish and English, and the year pack is supplied in protective plastic sleeve.

The front page shows the historical photograph of Christian X riding across the old border at Frederikshøj during the celebrations in connection with the Reunification in 1920.

Year pack

Snapshots of Danish culture

68 pages filled with this year's stamps and minisheets, as well as the stories behind the images. The stories are accompanied by rich visual material, and texts are available in Danish and English.

The front page shows a portrait of HM Queen Margrethe II, from her first state visit abroad as regent in 1973.

Immerse yourself in stories about Denmark, told through stamps and minisheets.

Consider what you write

First-day cover with five stamps, focusing on the importance of maintaining a good tone on social media.

At times, debates and disagreements on social media can become heated, and angry messages are sent. Words you would never have used if you were face to face. Consider what you write focuses on making an active choice and spreading a little joy rather than hate when communicating on social media.
